The defense industry has a passionate small business advocate in Benito Hobson.

Hobson, director of business development for Integritys Corp., spends the work day promoting the company and any free time he can find helping and promoting all small businesses through his role as vice president of small business for the San Diego chapter of the Armed Forces Communications and Electronics Association.

"I work for a small business. My boss, whom I love and respect, he built this business," Hobson said. "And so when you start to meet the entrepreneurs and the people and understand their vision and the sweat equity they put in, you can't help but want to be on a team like that."
